1926 SANBORN MAP

525 East Argonne

Home owners Chad and Liz Gorsuch wish to make improvements to the exterior of their home at 525 East Argonne. They wish to add a covered front porch similar to that of the original house. The Home-Owners wish to modify the side porch by removing the existing panel and screens and replace them with a new screen system. They wish to modify the flat roof at the side porch to a low-pitch roof with shingles. They wish to modify the existing built-in gutter, eave and cornice at the upper roof. We have provided architectural drawings showing the proposed improvements.

The house, built around 1860 is on the National Register of Historic Places, No. 52, known as the King Ambler House. The 1926 Sanborn Map recognized by the Kirkwood Historical Society shows the house plat with a covered porch at both the side and front entry. The current house has a side porch but no front porch. It appears that the front covered porch was removed sometime after 1926. The original window (or door) openings with a low sill for access the porch roof balcony are still evident. Modifications to the lap siding and the decorative quoins provide more evidence that the existing porch roof structure was removed. We have provided Photographs of the current house.

The Kirkwood Historical society has no photographs of the house before 1926 or with the front covered porch in place. In lieu of a photograph showing the original covered porch, we wish to submit a Model Example to demonstrate the probable appearance of the original front porch.

The houses at 549 East Argonne and 116 Woodlawn were built on the same block, and at the same time as 525 East Argonne. They were built in the same Italianate Style, and with similar materials as 525 East Argonne. They both still have their original covered front porches with flat or low pitched roofs and decorative columns, spindlework and brackets typical of the Italianate Style. We have provided photographs of the houses at 549 East Argonne and 116 Woodlawn.

The Home-Owners at 525 East Argonne wish to add a covered front porch appropriate to the style of these two houses

The Home Owners also wish to renovate the side porch. They wish to replace the wood posts, screens and sill panels with composite posts and screen panels with operable clear poly glazing. The flat roof is to be modified to a low-pitch flat roof with shingles and gutters.

The Home Owners wish to remove the existing built-in wood gutter with a metal pan and rework the eave to accommodate a conventional metal gutter. Cornice trim and brackets would be replaced with composite trim and brackets similar to the existing.
